Kentucky Bar Association Annual Convention

June 19-21 | Galt House Hotel

Letter from the President

Dear KBA Members:

With excitement and great expectation, I invite you to attend the 2013 Annual Convention of the Kentucky Bar Association (KBA) planned for Wednesday-Friday, June 19-21, at the Galt House Hotel in historic downtown Louisville.

I look forward to joining the KBA membership and staff in building upon the success of last year's program by welcoming David Boies and Theodore B. Olson – two famed courtroom adversaries turned co-counsel allies – along with national legal analyst and best-selling author Jeffrey Toobin. We will also take a look at one of the most infamous feuds in American history – the Hatfields and McCoys – and discuss the many cultural and legal issues that arose during this turbulent time along the Kentucky-West Virginia border.

In addition to our stellar featured speakers, the Annual Convention will also offer more than 60 quality CLE programs aimed at the varied interests of our membership. These opportunities will put us on target with our professional responsibilities, and the social events and reunions that go hand in hand with the Annual Convention will continue to make the event a tradition not to be missed.

Join us then as we celebrate our profession's pursuit of justice under the law.

Best regards,

2013 New Lawyer Program

The June 2013 New Lawyer Program is being held in conjunction with the 2013 KBA Annual Convention.

Those attorneys who are required to take the New Lawyer Program must attend Wednesday, June 19, and Thursday, June 20, in order to fulfill their requirement. Wednesday is planned for you; however, on Thursday you can choose from the Convention programming available. Please keep in mind that you must attend a minimum of six (6) hours on Thursday, including the Feature CLE program at 1:40 p.m. Your Wednesday programming will be held in the Archibald Ballroom in the Rivue Tower, except for the Feature CLE program which will be held in the Grand Ballroom in the Suite Tower.

You also have the option of attending Annual Convention programming on Friday, June 21, at no additional charge and earn extra CLE credits. These credits do not count toward your NLP requirement but do count toward the general CLE requirement and "may" be carried over. You are also encouraged to attend the various social events described in the brochure. Many of the events are complimentary and offer a great way to network and meet lawyers from across the Commonwealth. There is no fee to attend the New Lawyer Program if it is to fulfill your NLP requirement. You will need to register for the program by completing the Annual Convention Registration form and marking the box for New Lawyer Program Attendee.

If you have questions regarding the New Lawyer Program and your requirement, please contact Jennifer Keitz at (502) 564-3795 ext. 226 or jkeitz@kybar.org.

Convention Highlights

Don't Miss Our Featured Programs

Wednesday, June 19

With more than 60 CLE programs planned to address the varied interests of practitioners across the Commonwealth, the 2013 Convention promises to be one of the most informative and educational ever. Featured programs for the Convention include famed litigators David Boies and Theodore B. Olson on Wednesday, June 19; national legal analyst and author Jeffrey Toobin on Thursday, June 20; and an in-depth panel discussion entitled, "The Hatfields and McCoys: From Filing Suits to

Thursday, June 20

Friday, June 21

Firing Shots," on Friday, June 21. Panelists will include historical consultant and local expert Bill Richardson; constitutional law professor Paul Salamanca; author and history professor Altina Waller; and Darrell Fetty, producer of the recent award-winning History Channel miniseries, Hatfields & McCoys. Additionally, relatives of two key players in the feud – Jacob P. Cline III, great grandson of Perry Cline, and James B. Ratliff, cousin to "Bad Frank" Phillips – will participate in the panel discussion.

★ Wills for Warriors – Help Write a Will for a Veteran ★

Continuing a KBA tradition of community service, the 2013 Annual Convention Planning Committee is encouraging members to work with Kentucky's legal aid programs who offer services to low-income veterans.

Join the KBA as we demonstrate the "Power of One." Through this effort, every attorney attending the 2013 Annual Convention is asked to commit to help a needy client through a local legal aid program. That's one attorney helping one client pro bono. If this effort is achieved, more than 2,000 clients will be helped. We encourage you to "Be One." On the registration form, or at the registration desk, you can indicate your willingness to help a needy client. At the Convention, the legal aid programs will be matching up volunteer attorneys with low-income veterans who need Wills, Powers of Attorney, Health Care Surrogates, and Living Wills. Be sure to mark your registration form if you will be willing to volunteer to help a veteran either at the Convention or in your community. If you have expertise in other areas, representatives from Kentucky's legal aid programs will match your skills to help needy veterans in your community.

The Facts, Consequences and Policy Implications of Unrealized Reforms to Kentucky's Criminal Justice System

Featuring

Dr. James Austin, Washington, D.C.
Senior Judge Julia H. Adams, Winchester
J. Guthrie True, Frankfort
Secretary J. Michael Brown, Frankfort
Thomas B. Wine, Louisville
Judge Dan Kelly, Springfield

Sponsor | Criminal Law Section

Dr. James Austin of the JFA Institute will provide an overview of the state of corrections and crime policy nationally and in Kentucky. It has been forty years (1969) since a decline in the nation's prison population has been reported. Today, the crime rate is 3,667 per 100,000 (the same as 1969), but our incarceration rate is about five times higher. With the soaring costs of corrections and a stagnant economy, policy makers are searching for ways to lower their investment in corrections. The only effective means for lowering correctional populations is to reduce the number of admissions and/or to reduce the average length of stay in prison through more enlightened sentencing practices and increased utilization of probation and parole. It is highly unlikely that such a reduction can be achieved by reducing recidivism rates, which have remained unchanged for at least twenty-five years and are unlikely to change appreciably in the future. Rather, the solution lies in simply returning to the same sentencing and correctional policies that existed a few decades ago when our crime rate was what it is today.

Plea Bargaining Obligations: The New Normal for Counsel after Padilla

Featuring

J. McGregor Smyth, Bronx, New York

Kate L. Benward, LaGrange

Damon Preston, Frankfort

Justice Lisabeth Hughes Abramson, Louisville

Judge Gregory M. Bartlett, Covington

Timothy R. Coleman, Morgantown

Sponsor | Criminal Law Section

Like patients of doctors, clients of lawyers want full and accurate advice on the consequences of their decisions. The Supreme Court's seminal decision in Padilla v. Kentucky established that to provide effective assistance of counsel, an attorney has an affirmative duty to give specific, accurate advice to noncitizen clients of the deportation risk of potential pleas. Application of the Court's reasoning reaches far beyond advice on immigration penalties, extending to any and all serious and likely penalties resulting from a finding of guilt, as held by the Kentucky Supreme Court in the 2012 cases of Stiger, Pridham, and Cox. Padilla and the subsequent Kentucky cases should remind policymakers and criminal justice system leaders to recognize and respond to the practical realities of collateral consequences to convictions. This program will review federal and state case developments and discuss the responsibilities of the defense counsel, prosecutor, and judge. It will further discuss how these criminal justice professionals can access the information necessary to provide accurate advice.

Juror Decision-Making: The Impact of Witness Credibility on Perceptions of Victimization in the Courtroom

Featuring

Dr. Jonathan M. Golding, Lexington

Join Dr. Golding as he describes theoretical issues and empirical research concerning the impact of witness credibility on jurors' reactions to cases of victimization (e.g. child abuse, elder abuse, stalking, rape and domestic violence). The effect of various types of evidence from these cases (repressed memory, DNA evidence, hearsay testimony, witness demeanor, type of crime, and expert testimony) will be discussed as well as the role that juror gender plays in the courtroom.

Featured CLE – Views from the Front Lines: The Current State of the Justice System and Notable Supreme Court Decisions and Developments

Featuring

Theodore B. Olson, Washington, D.C.

David Boies, Armonk, New York

Famed litigators David Boies and Theodore B. Olson will serve as the featured speakers on the opening day of the KBA's 2013 Annual Convention. The two men, once adversaries in the case of Bush v. Gore, have teamed in recent years to represent the plaintiffs in the historic civil rights litigation concerning California's Prop 8 same-sex marriage ban, Hollingsworth v. Perry, which was argued before the Supreme Court of the United States during the current term. In 2010, Time Magazine selected Boies and Olson as two of the 100 most influential people in the world. Additionally, in 2011, the two men received the American Bar Association's highest award, the ABA Medal, recognizing "exceptionally distinguished service by a lawyer or lawyers to the cause of American jurisprudence." Mr. Boies is the founder and chairman of Boies, Schiller & Flexner LLP, in Armonk, N.Y. In 1998-2000, Boies served as special trial counsel for the U.S. Department of Justice in its antitrust suit against Microsoft. He also served as lead counsel for former Vice President Al Gore in litigation relating to the 2000 election Florida vote count. Mr. Olson is a partner in Gibson, Dunn & Crutcher's Washington, D.C., office. Olson was Solicitor General of the United States from 2001-2004, and has argued dozens of cases before the U.S. Supreme Court, including the two Bush v. Gore cases arising from the 2000 presidential election. The presentation by Mr. Boies and Mr. Olson will be conducted in two parts, separated by a short break. During the first segment, they will discuss the crisis in the justice system and the importance of adequate funding for state courts, followed by a second segment that will focus on recent developments in the Supreme Court, including reflections on their litigation experiences. Make plans to take advantage of this unique opportunity to hear the viewpoints and learn from the experiences of two of the preeminent members of our profession.

The Gideon Decision: Constitutional Mandate or Empty Promise? Does the 50th Anniversary of the U.S. Supreme Court Decision Deserve a Celebration?

Professor Cedric M. Powell, Louisville

Sponsor | Criminal Law Section

On January 8, 1962, the Clerk of the Supreme Court of the United States received a handwritten petition from Clarence Earl Gideon asking the Court to overturn his conviction for theft because he had not been appointed a lawyer to represent him in his criminal trial. That petition began the landmark case of Gideon v. Wainwright, in which the Supreme Court unanimously declared on March 18, 1963, the "obvious truth" that "lawyers in criminal court are necessities, not luxuries." In the fifty years since the Gideon decision, however, the Court's declaration has had a hollow ring. There are people in courtrooms across the country every day who go unrepresented or are defended by attorneys who do not have the time or resources to do their jobs. The U.S. Department of Justice has itself declared that public defense in the United States is in a "chronic state of crisis." This has put the entire criminal justice system in jeopardy; even worse, it has eroded the public's confidence in the system that is the bedrock of American democracy. Shortly before his term as President of the American Bar Association ended, Wm. T. (Bill) Robinson III addressed the Foundation for Criminal Justice at its banquet celebrating the 50th Anniversary of the Gideon decision. He made clear that a fair trial requires the right to counsel at every step of the judicial process: "Without it, can we honestly say that people are receiving the dignity, equality, and basic human rights the Constitution demands and that our people deserve? ... It is our duty, as lawyers, as Officers of the Court, to ensure the basic rights guaranteed by Gideon are fulfilled." This presentation will begin with the premiere screening in Kentucky of The Constitution Project's critically acclaimed film, Defending Justice, commemorating the 50th anniversary of the Gideon decision, followed by remarks from Steve Bright and a spirited discussion among distinguished, knowledgeable and opinionated panelists: Amy Bach, Steve Hanlon, Bill Leahy and Prof. Cedric Powell. Don't miss this program! It promises to be interesting, informative and entertaining ... and provide important motivation for Kentucky lawyers to fully appreciate and discharge their duty as officers of the court to ensure that the right to counsel is realized throughout the Commonwealth.

Chronic underfunding has left Kentucky public defense without sufficient funds to properly compensate attorneys doing conflict representation at trial, post-trial and on appeal. Kentucky public defenders statewide seek additional lawyers to 1) represent conflict clients in criminal cases in district and circuit court for a modest flat fee rate that amounts to subsidized pro bono assistance, $250 for a misdemeanor, $500 for a felony; or 2) represent a client in a pro bono appeal of a criminal conviction to the Kentucky Court of Appeals or Kentucky Supreme Court. This program will introduce interested lawyers to the reason for private bar assistance and the opportunities and benefits it presents local lawyers, including the nonfinancial value of such assistance.

Innovative technology is ablaze, bringing with it phenomenal innovations, great successes, and significant risk exposure. The recent litigation between Apple and Samsung evidences this best, with both companies battling out the metes and bounds of their design and utility patents in the United States and nine other countries. In the first monumental U.S. skirmish between the two tech-giants, Apple received a $1.049 billion judgment in its favor related to its “Bounce-Back Effect,” “On-Screen Navigation,” and “Tap to Zoom” patents, only to have the “Bounce-Back” patent “tentatively” rendered invalid by the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office less than two months later. How did the jury reach its conclusions? Has Apple’s innovations failed to meet the threshold of patentability under current U.S. patent law? Where is this litigation headed? What lasting impacts will this litigation have on users, the technology industry, and U.S. patent law as a whole? Professor Gregory S. Gordon, Grand Forks, North Dakota

On May 1, 2011, Navy Seal Team 6 slipped into Pakistan and, after a brief fire fight, located and killed Osama bin Laden, the Al Qaeda leader and mastermind behind so much death and destruction around the world. In some quarters, the rejoicing was short-lived as questions emerged as to the legality of the operation, especially after it was determined that bin Laden was unarmed. Also, the Pakistani government was unaware of the raid until after it was completed. Did the United States violate international and human rights law or was the operation legal? The New Yorker reporter Nicholas Schmidle will discuss the details of the raid and insights gained while living in Pakistan for two years.
